

Anglicans Want To Be More Open!

Our feelings and concerns about this issue-

I attend church because I believe in God and the Holy Bible. The Bible definitely speaks against homosexuality and I believe God's word should be preached to everyone regardless of sexual orientation. God would never bless a homosexual marriage or any other sin. I am totally against it and I am wondering if the Bible mentioning the falling away within the church in end-times is happening now. I will look for a church that is true to God's Word.

I am a cradle Anglican. I am not against homosexuals. I have a brother who has been with the same partner for over 40 years. His way of life is his decision. I do not feel this is an area the church should be involved in. So many things have been changed due to these issues. I was very upset when prayers had to be changed to become all inclusive. Things like mother/father God. Changing lovely old hymns and prayers is not right. These issues are causing problems with parishes and families. I feel this canon should not be changed. Change means growth, but in this case I feel it means death. As he stated above, my husband will leave the church. I hope I will not have to make a decision on this matter.
