Waterloo Ministries Directory

Anglicans and Lutherans Together for the Love of the World

The following working definition of Waterloo Ministries was revised by the Joint Anglican-Lutheran Commission (JALC, October, 2011) and then again to include "merged communities" / category 6 .

Waterloo Ministries

The Joint Anglican-Lutheran Commission defines Waterloo Ministries as those full-communion (ACC-ELCIC) ministries which give expression to the Waterloo Declaration (2001) in one or more of six ways:

1. Ministries where Anglican and Lutheran communities share facilities;
2. Ministries where Anglican and Lutheran communities share program;
3. Ministries where Anglican and Lutheran communities share worship;
4. Ministries where Anglican and Lutheran communities share ordained or rostered ministers;
5. Ministries where a community is served by an ordained or rostered minister of the full-communion partner;
6. Merged/combined communities.

Categories 1 - 4 are common to Ecumenical Shared Ministries (see page 2, following).

The ACC - ELCIC full-communion relationship adds categories 5 & 6 to the mix.

Waterloo Ministries Directory

Revised twice a year, this Waterloo Ministries Directory provides West-to-East, province-by-province, listings for Waterloo Ministries. These listings witness to the possibilities for local full-communion expression and assist Anglican and Lutheran communities to learn from and to support one-another.

Revisions may be directed to Pastor André Lavergne, CWA, Assistant to the Bishop, Ecumenical and Interfaith, ELCIC at alavergne@elcic.ca.

ECUMENICAL SHARED MINISTRIES

The following understanding of Ecumenical Shared Ministries (ESM's) is distilled from the website of the Prairie Centre for Ecumenism (PCE) whose vision is the full visible unity of the Church — one body with many members. The Centre is located in Saskatoon, Saskatchewan. See www.pcecumenism.ca.

What is an Ecumenical Shared Ministry (ESM)?

- ESM's are people worshipping and serving God in a united way while still maintaining their denominational identity and connections.
- ESM's are any combination of denominations sharing a program, mission, ministry or building.

What do Ecumenical Shared Ministries look like?

- Ecumenical shared ministries may be as simple as the sharing of programs and/or staff. Congregations may share a building but otherwise maintain their own denominational ministry and services. Sometimes several denominations may be served by a single ordained minister and alternate the forms of Sunday worship. Sometimes several denominations may have one ordained minister and one common service. Sometimes several denominations share and maintain church buildings in a number of locations and rotate services. Many combinations are possible.
- Over the past several decades, Ecumenical Shared Ministries have become a significant presence in Canada. In some cases, a commitment to an ecumenical model of ministry is the primary motivation for collaboration. In others, declining membership or resources move congregations to consider shared or collaborative ministries. Small, isolated, or ecumenically committed congregations of different denominations may choose to worship together in order that they may continue as communities of faith in a new way. In still other cases, the formation of a new ministry in a community may prompt those involved to deliberately choose to form a collaborative ministry from the outset.
- In 2006, the Anglican Church of Canada, Evangelical Lutheran Church in Canada, Presbyterian Church in Canada, and United Church of Canada formed an Ecumenical Shared Ministries Task Force which collects and shares resources about ecumenical shared ministries.

Ecumenical Shared Ministries Handbook (2011)

- The Ecumenical Shared Ministries Handbook is prepared by the Ecumenical Shared Ministries Task Force. It is intended as a resource for those engaged in or contemplating the establishment of congregational ecumenical shared ministry, and those interested in learning more about the dynamics of ecumenical shared ministries.
- The Ecumenical Shared Ministries Handbook is available at www.elcic.ca/ecumenical/anglicans.cfm and www.anglican.ca/faith/eir/esm/.

POLITY AND MERGER

In November, 2017, the Joint Anglican-Lutheran Commission received a report from its Polity Working Group, Archdeacon Alan Perry, Diocese of Edmonton, convenor.

Initially, some wondered at the possibility of a one-size fits all model for Anglican and Lutheran communities contemplating some kind of merger or combined identity. While a single model eludes us, the report nonetheless offers a helpful window into possibilities for those communities contemplating union.

The report is published here in full with the list at the conclusion modified to include new ventures.

November, 2017

The Polity Working Group was formed in response to a concern that it is necessary to establish a model of congregational governance for joint Anglican/Lutheran parishes which satisfies the wider governance needs of the Anglican Church of Canada and the Evangelical Lutheran Church in Canada. In particular, the concern is that each joint congregation must be constituted in such a way as to be able to take its place in the governance of both an Anglican Diocese and a Lutheran Synod. The hope is that the proposal of a model for such a form of joint congregational governance will provide a coherent resource for dioceses and synods in forming future joint congregations without having to develop a governance model for each instance.

The working group analyzed agreements and constituting documents for nine joint ministries, including five from Ontario, two from British Columbia and one each from Alberta and Saskatchewan.

Broadly speaking, the structure of these joint ministries can be categorized in two groups.

Five of the joint ministries involve discrete denominational congregations which co-operate under sharing agreements. Two include United Church congregations alongside Anglican and Lutheran partners, whilst the other three are joint Anglican/Lutheran ministries. In these ministries, each congregation retains its separate identity and incorporation, and is governed under its denominational polity. In each case the sharing agreement provides for sharing of a single pastor/priest. In two cases, the joint ministry is a multi-point ministry with separate congregations in separate buildings. In three cases, the joint ministry also involves sharing a single building alongside a single pastor. This type of shared ministry falls outside the scope of the concern describe above, although it might be useful to develop a template for sharing ministry amongst discrete congregations.

The other four shared ministries are truly joint congregations in which each ministry is a single, discrete entity, incorporated as such and inhabiting a single building with a single priest/pastor in charge of the congregation. This type of shared ministry is what raised the concerns that gave rise to the Working Group.

Analysis of the governance of the four joint congregations suggested that they are governed according to two models. Two joint congregations are governed by a congregational constitution based on the ELCIC model constitution for congregations. This model of governance will be referred to as the "ELCIC Model". The other two are governed by an agreement between the two founding congregations and the two judicatory bodies (i.e., the ELCIC congregation, the Anglican parish, the ELCIC Synod and the Anglican Diocese.) In addition, each of the resulting joint congregations has adopted or is in process of developing bylaws for internal governance. This model will be referred to as the "Midland Model" as it was first developed by St Mark's Anglican Lutheran Church in Midland, Ontario.

Both of these approaches have advantages and disadvantages. The chief advantage of the ELCIC model is that it is based on a well-developed, tried and true model for congregational government. The chief advantage of the Midland model is that it clearly brings together the synod and diocesan authorities as enablers of the new venture in mission and ministry. But both models are focused on the individual congregation, albeit for obvious reasons.

First Principles

In Anglican polity, a parish is a creature of, and part of, a diocese. It is subordinate to the diocese and subject to the constitution and canons of the diocese as adopted and amended from time to time by the diocesan synod. A parish participates in diocesan governance through delegates to synod, pursuant to the synod's constitution. A parish may not leave a diocese. Where incorporated, it is understood in law to be a subordinate entity to the diocese. Where parishes are incorporated, the most common regime is that there is a private Act of the provincial legislature incorporating all parishes in a given diocese. (In some dioceses parishes are not generally incorporated, or incorporation may be optional. Prior to the mid nineteenth century a number of parishes were created by Royal Letters Patent which created the Rector as a Corporation Sole.) A parish does not have articles of incorporation or a constitution of its own. If a parish is disestablished, its assets revert to the diocese.

In ELCIC polity, a congregation is a voluntary association of its members. The members form the congregation and the congregation then voluntarily joins the Synod. It participates in Synod governance through delegates to the convention, pursuant to the Synod's constitution. Although the congregation in joining the Synod voluntarily agrees to be subject to the constitution, bylaws and policies of the Synod, it may also voluntarily dissociate itself from the Synod thus nullifying that obligation. A congregation is incorporated pursuant to local provincial law and has articles of incorporation and a constitution. If a congregation is dissolved, the members determine what will happen to the assets.

Models of Collaboration

As noted above, there are two different models for incorporating and governing joint congregations currently in use. The common difficulty with both of these models is that most Anglican dioceses have no canonical mechanism for the recognition of a congregation that is not an Anglican parish. Thus, there is no obvious canonical interface for the joint congregation to participate in the life, mission and governance of the diocese, including exercising the privileges of Synod membership and fulfilling the obligations such as payment of assessments to the diocese. This is precisely the problem that gave rise to the Task Force. The obvious solution would be to adopt a canon creating a framework for a joint congregation which, though not being a parish in the usual sense, nevertheless functions as though it were a parish, including sending delegates to Synod and otherwise participating in the life, mission and governance of the diocese. The Diocese of Toronto's Canon 29 on Designated Ministries provides a model for such a canon.

There is a third possibility. Rather than forming a single joint entity, which would entail the disestablishment of two existing parishes, the parishes could form what in civil terms would be called a joint venture. In this model, each parish continues to exist with its incorporation, governance, assets and inclusion in the Synod/Diocese, but they agree to function as one unit, delegating day to day governance to a joint governing body. The joint venture can operate under a single charitable registration, and merge bank accounts. Financial reporting to and participation in the Synod and Diocese can be conducted from a common set of books on a proportional basis as agreed.

In this model, members of either congregation under the joint venture would understand themselves to be members of the joint venture as a whole and would be reckoned as both Anglicans and Lutherans for the relevant purposes of the Synod and Diocese. Though unincorporated, the joint venture would be understood to be a single congregation with the two original congregations providing the necessary interfaces to the Synod and Diocese. This model is similar to a sharing agreement between two existing but discrete congregations, with the primary form of collaboration being the sharing of a single cleric, but allows for closer collaboration, including the sharing of a single church building and joint worship and programming as one congregation. In effect, the two existing congregations continue to exist largely on paper, with the joint venture becoming the operative entity. The Diocese of Edmonton is in the process of developing a joint venture model of governance in collaboration with the Synod of Alberta and the Territories.

Forming a Joint Congregation

Whichever model of governance is chosen for a joint congregation, it should begin with a four-way agreement among the Anglican parish, the Diocese, the Lutheran parish and the Synod. This might be done in two stages, beginning with a Memorandum of Understanding as a preliminary to the final agreement. The authority, powers, rights and responsibilities of each of these four entities are affected by the formation of a joint congregation. The agreement needs to attend both to the positive reasons for collaboration, and the hopes and aspirations for the new joint congregation – on the one hand – and also – on the other hand – to the nitty-gritty details of the substantial differences in our two churches regarding such matters as differences in the definition of membership and the recruitment and regulation of clergy, including licensing/rostering, salary scales, pensions and benefits, working conditions and clergy discipline. Questions of building ownership, insurance, parish reporting, differences in the ways parishes support the diocese or synod financially, and the need for dispute settlement mechanisms must also be addressed in any joint governance agreement. Much though one would hope that a joint congregation will never experience any problems or conflicts, the reality is that no congregation is guaranteed to be immune to problems. Both of our churches have developed tried and true mechanisms for dealing with almost any eventuality, but the details differ in large part due to differences in our two polities. Nevertheless, attention needs to be paid at the outset to setting out protocols for dispute settlement that will avoid triangulation or choices based on a perceived path of least resistance as a matter of expedience in the heat of the moment. Similarly, it will need to be clear how protocols for prevention and reporting of sexual misconduct will be applied.

Where it is desirable to have a model for incorporation and governance of a joint congregation, it will be essential to accommodate the differences in polity between our two churches. The ELCIC model constitution provides a well-developed system of parish governance, but also includes elements that would be ultra vires in an Anglican setting, including the congregation's role in discipline (rather than the diocesan bishop, who has initial jurisdiction pursuant to Canon XVIII), and language stating what the congregation believes (contrary to section 6(i) of the General Synod's Declaration of Principles). If this model for incorporation is chosen, it should be adapted to take Anglican norms into account, as it will be creating a congregation that will be canonically recognized as an Anglican entity. The most obvious solution is to address these issues outside of the governance document, and place them in the four-way agreement described above.

Finally, it is necessary to specify clearly what will happen in the event that a joint venture is severed or a joint congregation is dissolved. In particular there is a need to provide for the disposition of property, both real and personal.

The most robust system for governance for joint congregations will, on the Anglican side, require canonical amendments to make provision for the incorporation of joint congregations into the diocesan structures as though they were parishes, providing an appropriate interface into Synod membership and the other structures of diocesan governance. Given the variations in diocesan structures across 30 dioceses, it is impossible to suggest a single approach. However, Toronto's Canon 29 provides a useful starting point. On the Lutheran side, this does not appear to be a problem.

Notes: For over 50 years the folk of the United Church in the North Thompson Valley were one church family – the North Thompson Pastoral Charge of the United Church of Canada. For many years the Pastoral Charge was made up of 3 points: Blue River, Clearwater, and Barriere. The Charge begins in McLure and goes to Blue River (a distance of almost 200 km). In the 1980s Blue River United Church closed and thus the charge became 2-point. In the late 1990s, Clearwater United Church sold their building and have been worshipping in St. James' Catholic Church since 2000. In 2008, Barriere United Church began experimenting with becoming Church of St Paul, recognizing the coming together of the Anglicans, Uniteds and Lutherans in town. (Serving Together as a Parish of Anglicans, Uniteds and Lutherans). This was made real on Pentecost Sunday 2010 with the signing of the Shared Ministry Agreement!

In the Fall of 2015, the entire Pastoral Charge became an Ecumenical Shared Ministry when representatives from the three denominations and the Pastoral Charge gathered to sign a new Shared Ministry Agreement. Clearwater United Church became Trinity Shared Ministry!

Notes: We have been together in ministry since 2000, anticipating the Waterloo Declaration. In 2004, with All Saints Anglican Church joining the shared ministry that had begun with St. Alban's Anglican and Christ the King Lutheran Churches in 2000, Trinity Anglican and Lutheran Parish was born. Over the course of these 15 years, church life and governance have melded together at Trinity, other than for specific denominational matters, programs and concerns. Our worship life includes a rotation of liturgies from both Lutheran and Anglican communities, rather than a unified service though there are components that are shared seasonally. We are in the process of becoming one legal entity as a congregation, happily belonging in our totality to both the ELCIC and the ACC through our regional bodies. It is hoped that this process will be concluded by the end of 2019.

Notes: Redeemer and Crooked River have incorporated the members of the Anglican/United churches in Porcupine Plain and Bjorkdale.

In Porcupine Plain, the Anglican/United church (Bethany-Good Shepherd) deconsecrated their church and the lovely old building is for sale. The manse was sold and the small elderly congregation moved over with us at Redeemer Lutheran some years ago. They have full voting rights at any council meeting and are very much involved in the life of Redeemer Lutheran / Anglican / United —not our “official” name, but the one we use now for anything community related. There is no covenant agreement with either denomination’s presbytery or diocese, but we come together to worship with a mutual trust in each other and God. I encourage everyone to keep in touch with and to support their original denominations if they so choose —and some do— both in Porcupine Plain and Bjorkdale.

In Bjorkdale, the United church was deconsecrated and sold, while St. John’s Anglican has heritage status. We try to hold at least three services there every summer so that they can keep their charitable status. Before they joined us, this older congregation worshipped for the winter months in the little United church building and in the summer at St. John’s Anglican (which has neither electricity nor plumbing). This Anglican/United congregation has been worshipping with us in Crooked River Lutheran now for over four years.

At both Redeemer and Crooked River, it has been a very cordial and gentle transition. We were all aware of how much grieving that these wonderful, but realistic, brothers and sisters were going through as they closed the facilities that they had long attended and loved. We helped them in whatever ways we were able with prayer, welcome and including them in all our decisions. The truth is, as well, that they all knew me. I had been serving these Lutheran churches and communities for at least 11 or 12 years by the time the transition was made. The Anglican/United family knew that we Lutherans had consistency —something which they had not known, in the main, for a decade or more.

We are all better, I believe, for being able to love each other and work together. We know we are all growing older and need to depend on our Lord, but also on each other as the body of Christ.

Notes: It was a day of celebration in Watrous on Feb. 19, 2017 when Our Redeemer's Lutheran and All Saints Anglican parishes sealed our shared ministry arrangement with a formal agreement.

Our journey started in July 2015 when we saw an opportunity to worship and work together. This is not an uncommon practise in rural parishes where faced with declining membership and attendance. As a result both of our parishes are experiencing a renewed enthusiasm that has allowed us to plan multiple events which bear witness to a promising future. — Cindy Vanthuyne, Chair Lutheran Church Council; Marie-Louise Ternier-Gommers, Pastoral Minister

The parishes, together with Bishop Sid Haugen and Bishop David Irving, drafted and approved an agreement that allows us to continue to work and grow together. Great things are already being accomplished and we look forward to a bright future "together in prayer."

Both churches historically have had a shared clergy relationship with other parishes from their own respective denominations from surrounding towns. In other words, both churches are used to sharing clergy with others. However, this is the first time both churches are sharing clergy with another church from a different denomination in the same town of Watrous.

It's been interesting to watch the development of this new relationship. People from both churches know one another well as they have lived in the same community together for years. They have worked together in business, socialized together in each other's homes and at civic events. However, this is the first time they are worshipping and sharing Christian life together.

Of course, there were some naysayers but they were in a minority. Although the catalyst to come together was out of necessity (declining attendance and finances), people from both churches are enthusiastic about the new relationship.

Some people may use the term "shared ministry" interchangeably with "shared clergy" but these are two different animals. The formal agreement is based on the idea of "shared clergy". However, because of the previous healthy personal relationships that existed before the formal agreement was signed around the idea of shared clergy, there seems to be an organic evolution towards a shared ministry relationship between both churches whereby God's people desire to worship, serve and learn together in Christ's name. This natural development from the more formal shared clergy arrangement based on practical necessity to the more organic shared ministry based on love and service is a gift from God.

When I tell people that both churches are worshipping together, there's always this element of surprise and joy. People, both in and outside of the church, are so used to seeing and hearing divisions in Christendom that when they hear two different denominations desiring to worship and serve together, people are blessed by the good news.

WATERLOO MINISTRIES MANITOBA

Synod and Diocese Share Office Space

On December 12, 2012, Manitoba/Northwestern Ontario Synod Bishop, Elaine Sauer, and Diocese of Rupert's Land Bishop, Donald Phillips, officially announced the joint venture of shared office space. The two regional offices are now housed together at 935 Nesbitt Bay in Winnipeg. From the Diocesan website: "The partnership that exists between the Anglican Church of Canada and the Evangelical Lutheran Church in Canada is part of the life of the Diocese of Rupert's Land. Cooperation at the parish level is a living demonstration of the on-going rapprochement throughout our two communions internationally and throughout world-wide Christianity. While our respective heritages are treasured, we have come to believe that our future is not defined solely by our past."

Joint Venture! Anglicans and Lutherans in God's Neighbourhoods — "ALIGN"

This piece, containing excerpts written by Melinda Pearce (italics) of the ALIGN leadership team for the websites of the local Lutheran Manitoba/Northwestern Ontario (MNO) Synod and Anglican Diocese of Rupert's Land, describes the ALIGN project initiated in the summer of 2016.

Together, the MNO synod and the Anglican Diocese of Rupert's land, under coaching from Dr. Alan J. Roxburgh of The Missional Network, are trying a new experiment. ALIGN is a "missional" experiment, in the sense that our desire to experiment together is rooted in the deep conviction that God is already at work outside our church walls and in the neighbourhoods of our world. Another conviction is that there is a hunger out there to connect- and that this is the work of the Spirit.

It began with a vision: What if we invited Lutheran and Anglican people living together in specific neighbourhoods to come together and go on a journey together of asking "What is God up to in our neighbourhood?" And then, what if, in asking that question, we together tried out some practices and some ways of joining in what God was doing and we learned something from it?

The unique thing about this "experiment" is that we have gone deeper than our identified congregational identities. We are moving out of our church buildings and "into our living rooms" and public gathering places in our neighbourhoods. And we are doing it in the neighbourhoods where Anglicans and Lutherans live – regardless of the congregation in which they worship. In the months since our September (2016) launch, our work has been identifying and establishing four neighbourhoods where we would begin the experiment, three in Winnipeg (Southwest Winnipeg, The Kildonans, and the West End/Wolseley) and one in the St. Andrews/Selkirk area of Manitoba. Each neighbourhood group includes people who identify as Lutheran and Anglican, both ordained and lay.

The four groups have begun meeting together in public spaces in their respective neighbourhoods. They have started to get to know each other and have begun the practice of Listening by Dwelling in the Word (on Luke 10:1-12) as a way of listening to God ... The other part of Listening involves listening to their neighbourhoods by listening to each other's stories of their experiences in their neighbourhoods. The people are also challenging themselves to learn to listen to those who are different than themselves in their neighbourhoods. Over the next year, each of the four teams will continue to meet monthly to engage in Listening, Discerning, Experimenting, Evaluating and Deciding.

Ultimately, through intentional interaction, sharing in their local congregations, and engaging Synod and Diocesan leadership, the goal is to discover together and be grasped by God's mission in our local communities. And then, through ongoing reflection and learning from our experience, to allow that mission to begin to re-shape our churches to better equip them to respond to God's call in our world.

Notes: Lutheran Cluster / Anglican Deanery share programs which include joint twice-monthly meetings of clericus/rostered ministers; monthly joint Anglican-Lutheran Youth events. A Sunday "Lutherans Together" prayer calendar incorporates area/national concerns of the Anglican-Lutheran Cycle of Prayer. Volunteers from our congregations assisted with CLAY 2018, held in Thunder Bay. A legacy of this is the Lutheran-Anglican Youth group. Coordinated jointly by congregational youth leaders, it meets monthly for both learning and fun opportunities, inviting youth from the ELCIC-ACC congregations, and their friends.

Anglican Evangelical Lutheran Group (AELG), Thunder Bay

We are a group of women who call ourselves the Anglican and Evangelical Lutheran Group (AELG). We have been in existence for 7 years. What do we do? Our first focus is a bursary to break the cycle of poverty through education. We support social justice and poverty / homelessness reform with other organizations. As both our churches Canada wide are talking to the government about poverty and homelessness, we are keeping our churches abreast of what is happening locally and doing advocacy where we can. We will be announcing our sixth $5,000.00 bursary recipient in June, 2018. We have kept in touch with all but one recipient and they are very happy to share with us how they are doing. At our last meeting, our 2016 recipient came to tell us how they were doing. They stated that they wouldn't have been able to go to college without the bursary.

Notes: " We are living in a different time, and for this time we need to explore ways of being and doing that may look different from our past." Willard Metzger ... Daring to Dream Again

November 20, 2013 marked the beginning into a journey of dreaming between two congregations in Guelph; St. Paul's Evangelical Lutheran Church and St. David & St. Patrick's Anglican Church. That evening a simple dinner invitation brought representatives from St. Paul's to St. David & St. Patrick's together to share a meal and entertain ecumenical ministry possibilities for the near future. In recent years, the two congregations had extended themselves into the occasional pulpit exchange as well as a yearly shared service. Despite this somewhat limited exposure, commonalities began to emerge particularly with the Church's true mission and outreach into the community. At that November meeting, bold individuals were willing to dream differently. Propelled by possibilities, in addition to financial realities, a proposal to begin talks on a new congregational model between the two churches was agreed upon both on a local level and the Lutheran Eastern Synod and the Niagara Anglican Diocese.

That winter, representatives and clergy from both congregations began to define what that congregational model might look like. Although potential possibilities of ministry as one body drove many of the conversations, one could not ignore the "Lutheran" and "Anglican" labels. Some obstacles were very real. Although the National churches have been in full communion since 2001, as defined in the Waterloo Declaration, governance models are very different. Tradition and personal church attachments also played a role.

A few months later, in April of 2014, Bishop Bird of the Anglican Diocese and Bishop Pryse of the Lutheran Eastern Synod met in Guelph with councils, clergy, and wardens to present their views and answer a list of standing questions. Their support and resources would play a central role and anchor point to conversations moving forward.

A formal task force between the two local churches was established and carried these conversations into 2015. Amid many questions, a basic education of specific terms and practices of both churches was begun. It's quite amazing how many assumptions we carry. We had to learn a common language.

In the spring of 2015, both congregations formally voted to enter a two-year partnership agreement and St. David & St. Patrick's moved all of its resources to St. Paul's. This was determined after evaluation of both physical properties and abiding finances. During this time, both communities lived, worked, and prayed together with the hope of creating a permanent shared Anglican-Lutheran ministry that would result in a long-term covenantal and legal relationship. It truly was a time of an engagement between two individuals.

A dedicated transition team was established which provided a bridge between the two governance models and provided a hub where existing teams or committees could talk and plan. This team was facilitated with support from the Anglican Diocese of Niagara and the Eastern Synod of the Evangelical Lutheran Church in Canada. Eventually a Joint Council was formed and ran parallel to the traditional governance models.

Following congregational votes on April 30, 2017, both churches were excited to announce that they accepted a formal merger agreement that would see a new church born to serve the people of Guelph. This new church is called All Saints Lutheran Anglican Church. It was one to be celebrated as it created the potential for us all to dream differently in our ministry. It wasn't the fact that we reached some kind of finish line but rather we were at a new epiphany, a new beginning point ... a new opportunity in mission.

Notes: On February 28, 2016, Holy Spirit Anglican and Peace Lutheran Churches merged. Here is our story; a story of God's faithfulness: the creation of the Church of the Holy Spirit of Peace.

It has been just slightly over five years since the beginning of this story of God's amazing faithfulness in creating a new, merged Anglican-Lutheran community of faith in Mississauga, Ontario; in some ways, it feels as if it has taken far longer than that, but in other ways it seems like only moments ago that it all started. Here is a brief retelling of how it all came to be.

A beginning forged through shared need

Peace Lutheran Church, located for 37 years within Square One Shopping Centre, received notice in November 2011 that their lease would not be renewed in April 2012 due to the mall's decision to expand the food court. Deeply grieving this loss of the only church home they had ever known, the community nevertheless resolved to continue in a new space; after extensive research, the congregation realized there were no suitable affordable locations available. This, then, meant a turn to another option: renting space from another church. Given the existing full communion relationship with the Anglican Church of Canada, it was clear the logical starting point for the search was local Anglican churches. In an amazing moment of the Spirit's work, this procrastinating pastor felt strongly urged (nagged, even!) to immediately begin the task of approaching parishes; upon arriving at the first church, I learned that all of the area priests were gathered for their monthly meeting, thus allowing me to complete the work of asking about rental space throughout the whole city in a single morning!

At this gathering of priests was the incumbent of Holy Spirit Anglican Church, the Rev. Judith Alltree; she had almost skipped the meeting, feeling despondent over the financial challenges faced by her parish and unsure of how she could help the church make better use of their church facility and secure new tenants. A colleague (incumbent at the church which was the pastor's first stop, in fact) encouraged her to come. After hearing about Peace's need for a new home, she immediately approached me and said "I can't believe you are here and I am here today – we need to meet and talk about this some more." The displaced people of Peace needed a new place to worship – the struggling people of Holy Spirit needed a new community to share their financial burden and their space. Shared need was a good starting point.

We did meet – the very next day – and our scheduled hour together stretched to three as we both excitedly shared our hopes and dreams for bringing these two congregations together in one place. Not long after, each of us met with our own congregation's lay leadership; then, we brought together the two groups of leaders to sketch out how this sharing of space might work. Motions were prepared for presentation at each community's upcoming Vestry/Annual Meeting, and these passed easily. To celebrate the beginning of this journey together, we gathered for a joint service on the last Sunday in February 2012. A busy two months of packing, planning and organizing ensued. Then, on April 22, Peace Lutheran worshipped one last time in their Square One sanctuary, and that week moved to Holy Spirit. There, the people of Peace were warmly and graciously welcomed, as were their beloved worship furnishings – Reverend Judith insisted on creating a chapel in the rear of the sanctuary with Peace's altar, ambo and stained glass cabinets, and invited us to hang four lovely hand-quilted banners on the front wall behind Holy Spirit's main altar. From the very start, it was clear that we were to consider this beautiful space not just a temporary rental – it was our new home.

Change and challenge brought learning and growth

Reverend Judith and I had marvelous plans for working together in deepening the relationship between our two communities (and ultimately merging them, we thought, even at that early stage); sadly, we did not have the opportunity to bring them to fruition. The deepening debt of Holy Spirit, even with Peace's arrival, meant they simply could not sustain supporting a full-time priest; Reverend Judith needed to resign, and so not long after Peace arrived we found ourselves helping Holy Spirit say goodbye to her. This ushered in a period of great change and challenge.

During the summer of 2012, Bishop Philip Poole of the Diocese of Toronto asked me to serve as Holy Spirit's interim. The two parishes worshipped together over July and August. We devoted the first month of services to experiencing "full-on" Lutheran and Anglican liturgies, surveying worshippers each week about what they liked and what challenged them about the liturgy of the day. We discovered that there were no significant challenges identified in either liturgy, and that all worshippers shared a love for hearing Scripture read and preached and for singing hymns – shared key elements of Anglican and Lutheran worship! From there, I worked with a small group of parishioners from both communities to create a blended liturgy combining the loveliest elements of each tradition's worship; we used that blended liturgy for the balance of the summer, along with hymns from both Evangelical Lutheran Worship and Common Praise. There was some resistance to the change, some discomfort with a non-Anglican presiding at the table, and a handful of departures from the parish – but the vast majority of Holy Spirit parishioners entered into this exploration with open hearts and minds. The people of Peace, still mourning the loss of their beloved home, could relate to the sadness of their new Anglican friends, and were therefore open to crafting worship that retained some favourite Holy Spirit elements (e.g. bell-ringing during Eucharist) despite their unfamiliarity to these Lutherans.

Fall 2012 brought the arrival of an Anglican interim priest for Holy Spirit, the Venerable Stephen Nduati, a Kenyan cleric pursuing his doctorate at Wycliffe College in Toronto. Father Stephen brought great wisdom and skill as a priest and leader; he reached out to the whole Anglican parish and gave them encouragement and hope for God's continued working in their midst. During his time as interim, the two communities worshipped separately other than joint services at Thanksgiving and Christmas, but shared some fellowship, Bible study and outreach work.

Upon Father Stephen's completion of his classes at Wycliffe at the end of February 2013 he returned to Kenya, and so Holy Spirit was once again without a priest. Bishop Poole appointed me once more to serve as interim, this time with the understanding that this interim would only last until the two communities had come to some conclusion about the viability of merger; Bishop Michael Pryse of the Eastern Synod of the ELCIC concurred. We agreed this process needed to be completely organic; the desire to pursue a shared future would have to emerge from the two communities over time, not be engineered by any church judicatory body.

During the spring of 2013, the two congregations continued to worship separately; I led Anglican services at 8 and 11am, and a Lutheran service at 9am. We continued joint Bible study and outreach, though, and members of the two congregations would often take time to chat between services on Sundays. We once again held combined worship over the summer that year, using the blended liturgy crafted the year before. In September, just after we returned to our separate worship schedule, I received an email from an Anglican parishioner; she reported that a number of folks chatting in the parking lot that Sunday said they missed being together for worship, and were wondering why we couldn't just continue doing so. The desire to merge had, at last, organically sprung forth from the people of Peace and Holy Spirit!

Contemplation of Merger and Merger

Bishop Poole came for a town hall meeting with the people of Holy Spirit to explain how the process of exploring merger would proceed. The two communities continued to worship together, and the lay leadership of both communities took on the task of researching how to structure the merged congregation and craft the required merger document. The clergy and lay leaders of St. David Orillia and St. Mark's Midland were extremely gracious in sharing their merger processes and documentation with us, and we owe them a huge debt of gratitude for all their help. Both Bishops and the staff of the Diocese of Toronto and the Eastern Synod also provided outstanding support along the way. Both congregations were given the opportunity to review and comment on the merger document and the proposed merged budget prior to the Vestry / Annual Meeting, held simultaneously in early 2015. On that Sunday after worship, each community held its own meeting up to and including a separate vote on the merger; once that vote passed with a sizable majority in each congregation, the two meetings became one, and the combined membership considered a merged budget for the balance of 2015.

From March onwards, the congregations proceeded as if formally merged, with all offering pooled in one bank account, and all expenses merged. Members were invited to submit ideas for the new parish name, which were given to the Diocese and the Synod; Holy Spirit of Peace, a parish favourite, was approved by both bishops. A final ratifying vote was held in late 2015; this time, the vote to officially merge was unanimous! The parish also voted to ask Bishop Philip and Bishop Michael to consider me for the position of incumbent, and they ultimately decided to do so.

Birth of a New Community

The Church of the Holy Spirit of Peace officially came into being on January 01, 2016; the long-awaited merger was liturgically celebrated with a standing-room only service on February 28, 2016, led by both Bishop Philip and Bishop Michael, with retired Bishop Terry Dance preaching and both Anglican and Lutheran choirs from neighbouring churches taking part. There is no doubt in my mind: right from the start in November 2011, the Holy Spirit was patiently leading us to this moment. Thanks be to God for doing this new thing among us! I pray that our story can inspire and encourage others to explore the tremendous benefits of coming together to love and serve God and neighbour with exponentially greater strength as a merged Anglican/Lutheran congregation.

Notes: Four Anglican communities and one Lutheran church shared ministries into 2017. Two of the Anglican churches have since moved-in together. We have looked at ways to share ministries of education, health and wellness, and mission. All congregations maintain their own autonomy but worship regularly at special services. The clergy retreat together annually.

Notes: St. John's has had an ongoing relationship with the Montreal Diocesan Theological College (MDTC), an Anglican theological school and a founding member of The Montreal School of Theology in affiliation with McGill University. St. John's pastor teaches a segment on Eucharist to seminarians and has been host to Anglican seminarians doing their practicum or in-ministry year (i.e. internship). St. John's offers a Student Ministry which includes students from many denominations, including our Anglican neighbouring parishes.

St. John's hosts an Easter Vigil each year (for over 30 years) for the Montreal Ministry Area and with participating Lutheran and Anglican clergy, students from Anglican Diocesan College, and other ecumenical participants (e.g. Mennonite Church Canada or United Church of Canada).

St. John's has also hosted celebrations and commemorations for Montreal such as a Commemoration of the victims of the 2017 Quebec City mosque shooting and the joint commemoration of the Reformation 500 year in partnership with the Roman Archdiocese of Montreal (“From Conflict to Communion prayer service”).

A concert series, “Serenata,” featuring professional musicians is a ministry providing top-level concerts to all for simply a free-will offering (www.sasj.ca). Community involvement is important at St. John’s with a Food Bank, outreach to the homeless, making space available for community choirs and more.

Notes: The Anglican Parish of New Germany has overlapping boundaries with three different Lutheran parishes. A patchwork of shared ministry exists between these four parishes.

Transfiguration Anglican Church and neighbouring St. Matthew's Lutheran Church, Newburne (part of the New Germany parish), share a parking lot as well as two services a month. They are at Transfiguration on the 2nd Sunday and St Matthew's on the 3rd Sunday, each according to the rite of the host congregation's tradition. Other special services are occasionally shared, and members of the two churches work closely together to explore ways to serve their community.

In the village of New Germany, Trinity Lutheran Church and St John-in-the-Wilderness Anglican Church celebrate Ash Wednesday and Maundy Thursday together every year, one service at each church. The host congregation provides the liturgy and leadership for the service while the guest congregation provides the preacher. Members of both parishes are also active leaders of Messy Saints, a twice-monthly, ecumenical after school drop-in program for school kids at New Germany elementary school.

In West Northfield, the Lutheran and Anglican churches are both called St Andrew's because of their shared history as St Andrew's Union Church. On the First Sunday after Christmas, the two parishes (Anglican Parish of New Germany and First Lutheran Community Parish) come together for a parish service at one of the St Andrew's churches (alternating locations annually). The host parish's rite is followed while the guest parish provides the preacher. These two churches are both frequent users and supporters of the West Northfield Community Hall, gathering together there for meetings, meals and fundraisers.

In Upper Northfield, Mount Calvary Lutheran Church has an ongoing history of cooperation with local Anglicans through shared Bible studies, cooperation in youth ministry and inclusion of Anglican clergy (from New Germany) on their monthly service roster.

The Anglican and Lutheran clergy of the area call freely upon one another for leave coverage and other assistance and are familiar with one another's rites and liturgical resources.
